

Each year, the Department of Occupational Science & Occupational Therapy distributes academic and financial awards to deserving students. The following list briefly summarizes the different types of awards, scholarships and bursaries available.

Scholarships

Scholarships are based primarily on academic excellence, although factors such as character, department involvement, community involvement and athletic achievement may be considered. Students must fall within the top 10 of their class based on overall GPA in order to be considered eligible for scholarships.

Awards

Awards are based primarily on interpersonal skills, leadership skills, academic excellence (demonstrated through program GPA), and contributions (to both the Department of OS&OT and the community) with examples.

Bursaries

Bursaries are administered by the UBC Awards Office. Please note that as per UBC Policy #72, graduate students in professional programs, such as the MOT, are ineligible for UBC general bursary support. The exceptions are bursaries dedicated to the Department of Occupational Science & Occupational Therapy as listed in this awards package. Students do not have to meet a minimum academic requirement in order to be considered eligible for bursaries.

Notification Regarding Awards

The Awards Committee will normally meet at the end of May to review applications. If your application was successful and you have been granted an award, you will receive a notification from Student Financial Services to accept the award via the Student Service Centre (SSC). If you receive a scholarship, bursary, or award in support of your studies, please send a prompt and personal thank you letter to the donor.

Application Process

Carefully read the description of each scholarship, award or bursary listed below - this will indicate the criteria upon which the award decision is based. If the description does not have clearly stated criteria, your application should focus on leadership and interpersonal skills, contributions to the MOT program (with examples), and contributions to the profession (with examples). However, you must ensure that each application is unique and does not simply repeat information provided in other applications.

Each scholarship, award and bursary that requires an application has a PDF application form, available online at <https://osot.ubc.ca/current-students/>, which must be completed in full. Please note that we have combined the application form for some awards with similar criteria; the combined application form will indicate what awards the one form is for. To complete the application form electronically, you will have to download the application form to your computer to enable the fields on the form. You must submit your application form(s) by email to david.tsukada@ubc.ca or drop off to the main office by 4:00 PM on May 13, 2022. All applications must be submitted in one email.
